- VC of the university HK Chaudhary, in an exclusive interview with The Tribune, said the institute had decided to get the GI tag for all varieties of Himachali rajmash.

VC said:

- He had collected 368 rajmash landraces from the tribal belt and other areas of the state, including Kukumseri (Lahaul & Spiti), Kinnaur, Kullu, Mandi and Chamba districts. These were called the hotspot regions for the landraces of rajmash cultivation.
- We evaluated, purified, characterised and developed a popular rajmash variety 'triloki rajmash' following the pure line selection method of breeding. The university has initiated a process to get Geographic Indicators for the rajmash landraces in collaboration with the Himachal Pradesh Council for Science Technology and Environment (HIMCOSTE), Shimla.

- This will get it national and international recognition benefiting local farmers.

About triloki rajmash:

- Rajmash variety “triloki” had been released for the cultivation in dry temperate zone hilly region. It had bold and creamish yellow seeds with good cooking quality and excellent organo-leptic taste, resistant to diseases like bacterial blight, angular leaf spot and anthracnose and provides 20-22 quintal per hectare average seed yield.
- It was ready for harvesting 10-20 days earlier than other varieties of rajmash.

Other Varieties:

- Creamish yellow rajmash, grown by the farming community in the hilly regions, possesses many health-related nutrients. Such light-coloured rajmash contains a good amount of carbohydrates, fibers and anti-oxidants which has the ability to fight against diseases. Apart from this, vitamin B6 and vitamin C, mineral elements as potassium, zinc, magnesium, calcium and iron are also found to increase the immune system and control blood pressure.
- Phytohaemoglutin, a harmful toxic element, is found in lesser amounts in creamish yellow rajmash than in red rajmash, which prevents many stomach-related problems like diarrhoea, colic and indigestion. Creamish yellow colour-seeded rajmash has a thin seed coat and takes less time for cooking.

According to the legend, when Goddess Sati sacrificed herself for Lord Shiva during her father's yajna. Lord Shiva took Maa Sati on his shoulders and started doing Tandav; expressing his anger.

Thus, in order to stop him from destructing the world, Lord Vishnu had to intervene and divided her body into 51 parts. It is believed that her left chest fell at the spot where the temple stands today, and from then on, the place is known as the Shakti Peetha.
